

CONTENTS

Author's Preface	v
I. Preliminary Note	1
II. The Perspectives of Knowledge	7
III. First Notes on Knowledge and Being	19
The Rational Argument	21
The Modalities of Knowledge and the Modes of Judgment; Objectivity, Subjectivity and Community	21
The Empirical Argument and the Cardinal Values	23
The Dual Argument. The Poles of Mathematics and History	27
Being as Transcendent	30
IV. Knowledge and Language	32
The Meaning of Words in Science	32
The Meaning of Words in Poetry	40
The Transformation of the Meaning of Words	44
"Epistemology" and "Knowledge"	47
V. Knowledge is Discursive	49
A Broader Basis for "Knowledge"	49
Nature of Being	51
Knowledge as a Discourse	53
Some Specific Modes of Discourse	59
VI. Knowledge is Idealistic	62
What are Ideas?	62
The Idealistic Feature of Knowledge	62
The Genesis of Ideas	63
Good and Illusory Ideas	65
The Attraction of Ideas	66
The Delight of Ideas	66
Knowledge and its Relation to Love	68
Idealism and Idealistic Knowledge	70
Ideas and Forms	70
Ideas and Reality	71
VII. Knowledge is Pragmatic	74
The Pragmatic View of Knowledge	74
The Meaning of the Word Pragmatic	74
Knowledge and its Pragmatic Perspective	74

The Pragmatic Perspective under further Consideration	77
The Pragmatic Perspective and the Modalities of Knowledge	77
Knowledge as Pragmatic in the Scientific Mode	77
Knowledge as Pragmatic in the Mode of Art	80
Knowledge as Pragmatic in Morals	80
Pragmatic Features in the Mystic Approach	81
Pragmatism is not the only Perspective	82
VIII. Knowledge is Formal	84
General Considerations	84
The Subject of Cognition and the Objects of Knowledge	86
Formality and the Modes of Science and Art	88
Science and Form	89
Art and Form	91
Form and Reality	92
The Role of Form in Critical Decisions	94
Mysticism	95
Morals	100
IX. Knowledge and Existence	102
Existence and Being	102
Existence and Judicial Knowledge: Science, Art, Morals	104
Existence and Essential Knowledge	111
X. About Love and Perfection and Some Concluding Remarks	115
Discord Among Philosophers	115
Perfection and Imperfection, with some Examples from Morals	116
Happiness	119
Happiness and the General Evidences	120
Love	121
The Supremely Great and the Ontological Argument	122
The Position of Science	124
The Unity of Knowledge	126
The Teleological-like Argument	128
Knowledge as a Possession and as a Promise	129

Appendix

Part One: The Categories	135
The Meaning of Category	135
Elaboration of the Categories	137
Science	137
Art	141
Poetry and Metaphysics	142
More on the Specifications of the Categories and their Respective Studies	143

Part Two: Modern Physics and the Categories	148
Impact of Nuclear and Atomic Physics upon the Spatial and Temporal Categories	148
Space	149
Time	150
The Relativity of the Categories	150
Prediction and the Category	152
The Relativity of Objectivity: Physics and the Concept of Freedom	154