

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
The Role of Being in Philosophical Anthropology	5
Chapter I. THE DIMENSION OF SELF	9
The Multiple Me's of Materialism	10
The Mind as Self According to Immaterialism	13
The Human Person According to Traditional Philosophy	15
The Unity of the Self	22
Dasein According to Contemporary Philosophy	25
The Self-Integration Process According to Jung	29
Summary	32
Chapter II. OUR SENSIST DIMENSION	39
What Can We Know According to Materialism?	39
What Can We Know According to Immaterialism?	43
The Sensist Dimension According to Traditional Philosophy and Biology	45
The Relation of World and Body According to Contemporary Philosophy	52
The Development of the Senses According to Piaget	54
Summary	59
Chapter III. THE DIMENSION OF UNDERSTANDING	63
The Falsity of the Understanding According to Materialism	63
The Dimension of Understanding According to Immaterialism	64
The Dimension of Understanding According to Traditional Philosophy	66
Differences in Operation of Sense and Intellectual Powers	71
Comparison Between Sense and Immaterial Ways of Knowing	72
What Is Thinking? According to Contemporary Philosophy	77
Summary	81

Chapter IV. THE DIMENSION OF WORLD	87
A Materialist Environment	91
The Ideal World of Immaterialism	97
The World-View of Traditional Philosophy	101
The Worlding of World According to Contemporary Philosophy	102
Summary	106
Chapter V. DIMENSIONS OF FREEDOM, CREATIVITY, AND PLAY	111
Is Freedom Possible in a Materialist Environment?	112
Freedom as License According to Immaterialism	115
The Dimension of Freedom According to Traditional Philosophy	118
The Dimension of Freedom According to Contemporary Philosophy	124
The Dimension of Creativity	128
The Dimension of Play	132
Summary on Freedom	134
Chapter VI. THE DIMENSION OF LOVE	139
Love as Instinct According to Materialism	139
The Idealization of Love According to Immaterialism	141
Love of the Good According to Traditional Philosophy	145
Love as a Coincidence of Opposites According to Contemporary Philosophy	149
Summary	162
Chapter VII. THE DIMENSIONLESS DIMENSION	167
The Meaning of Death	167
The Dimension of Eternal Life	168
The Relation of the Human Being to Being Itself	172
A Frameless Framework	175
Steps to Enlightenment	178
The Dimensionless Dimension	182
Bibliography	191
Index	201