

The West European City: A Social Geography

PAUL WHITE
Lecturer in Geography
at the University of Sheffield

84/ 8.458

LONGMAN
London and New York

Contents

List of Figures	ix
List of Tables	xi
Preface	xii
Acknowledgements	xvi
Maps – location of cities mentioned in the text	xvii
One The Legacy of History	1
Introduction	1
Controlling interests and the pre-industrial legacy	3
Urban demography before 1800	14
The nineteenth century: the industrial city	16
City walls	22
Haussmannization, planning and the twentieth century	27
Conclusions	31
Two Housing in the Western European City	35
Housing classes	36
Dwelling types and housing densities	47
A summary of housing	54
Three Demography	57
Components of change	57
Fertility	62
Mortality	63
Age-structures	68
The distribution of the sexes	72
Four Domestic Migration and the City	74
Structural determinants and correlates of migration	74
Mass domestic migration in Northern Europe	77
Post-war domestic migration in Southern European cities	82
Belgium and Switzerland: domestic migration and cultural cleavage	91
Contemporary Northern European cities	94

CONTENTS

Five	International Migration and the City	97	↓
	The evolution of international migration	97
	The size of the migrant groups	101
	The migrants: origins, characteristics and occupations	108
	✕ Migrants in the housing market	115
	✕ Segregation	120
	Conclusions	131
Six	Intra-urban Migration	134
	The volume of movement	135
	The movers and their motives	137
	Patterns of movement	139
Seven	The Residential Kaleidoscope	151
	Social structures	152
	✕ Residential segregation and housing variables	155
	Social class and location	160
	Social dimensions and spatial patterns	170
	Behaviour in social space	182
	Conclusions	187
Eight	Change in the Inner-City	191
	Demographic and social composition	191
	City-centre depopulation	198
	Renewal and redevelopment: restoration and rehabilitation	204
Nine	The Suburbs and Beyond	212
	The history of suburban growth	212
	Types of suburb	215
	The journey-to-work	226
	Alternatives to suburban growth	229
	Appendix – Data sources for figures and tables	233
	Notes on further reading	235
	References	238
	Index of authors	258
	Index of places	264
	Index of subjects	268	