CHAPTER 1

Introduction

1

- 1.1 Goals of the book 1
- 1.2 Approach 1
- 1.3 Argument of the book 2
- 1.4 Plan of the book 5

CHAPTER 2

Semantic structures in the strata of English

7

- 2.1 Introduction 7
- 2.2 Semantic structure in lexis 7
 - 2.2.1 Paradigmatic lexical relations 7
 - 2.2.2 Syntagmatic lexical relations 8
 - 2.2.3 Words without paradigmatic or syntagmatic relations 9
- 2.3 Semantic structure in morphology 9
 - 2.3.1 Semantic classes 9
 - 2.3.2 Grammatical meaning 10
 - 2.3.3 Dependency and modification 10
- 2.4 Semantic structure in syntax 10
 - 2.4.1 Semantic structure of clauses: The figure 10
 - 2.4.2 Semantic structure in groups 13
- 2.5 Semantic structure in phonology 14
 - 2.5.1 Introduction 14
 - 2.5.2 Semantics of tonality 14
 - 2.5.3 Semantics of tone 15
 - 2.5.4 Semantics of tonicity 16
 - 2.5.5 Semantics of rhythm 17
 - 2.5.6 Semantic structure in phonetics 18
 - 2.5.7 Discussion: Semantic structure in phonology 19
 - 2.5.8 Conclusion: Semantics in the phonological stratum 21
- 2.6 Conclusion: Semantic structure in the strata of English 22

CHAPTER 3

Basis of semantic structure

25

- 3.1 Introduction 25
- 3.2 The intention to speak 25
 - 3.2.1 Main intention 25
 - 3.2.2 Subordinate intentions 26
 - 3.2.3 Discussion 27
 - 3.2.4 Conclusion 27
- 3.3 Functions, as the formulation of intention 28
 - 3.3.1 Introduction 28
 - 3.3.2 Expressive function 28
 - 3.3.3 Interpersonal function 30
 - 3.3.4 Ideational function 31
 - 3.3.5 Conclusion 31
- 3.4 Constraints on meaning 32
 - 3.4.1 Introduction 32
 - 3.4.2 Linguistic constraints 32
 - 3.4.3 Semiotic constraints 33
- 3.5 Conclusion: Basis of semantic structure 37

CHAPTER 4

Elements of semantic structure

39

- 4.1 Introduction 39
- 4.2 Preliminaries 39
 - 4.2.1 Areas of meaning: Cognitive and linguistic meaning 39
 - 4.2.2 Aspects of meaning 42
- 4.3 Dimensions of linguistic meaning 43
 - 4.3.1 Introduction 43
 - 4.3.2 Quality dimension 43
 - 4.3.3 Intensity dimension 43
 - 4.3.4 Specificity dimension 44
 - 4.3.5 Vagueness dimension 44
 - 4.3.6 Basicness dimension 45
 - 4.3.7 Viewpoint dimension 45
 - 4.3.8 Boundedness dimension 45
 - 4.3.9 Expectedness dimension 46
 - 4.3.10 Salience dimension 47
- 4.4 Content meaning 47
 - 4.4.1 Introduction 47
 - 4.4.2 Descriptive meaning 49
 - 4.4.3 Affective meaning 52
 - 4.4.4 Attitudinal meaning 56
 - 4.4.5 Social meaning 58
 - 4.4.6 Conclusion: Types of content meaning 59

4.5	Grammatical meaning	61
4.5.1	Introduction	61
4.5.2	Types of grammatical meaning	64
4.5.3	Dimensions of grammatical meaning	65
4.5.4	Discussion	66
4.5.5	Conclusion: Grammatical meaning	67
4.6	Semantic classes	68
4.6.1	Introduction	68
4.6.2	Basic classes	69
4.6.3	Discussion: Semantic classes	71
4.6.4	Conclusion: Semantic classes	72
4.7	Uses of meaning	72
4.7.1	Introduction	72
4.7.2	Marked use	73
4.7.3	Defining and descriptive uses	73
4.7.4	Literal and figurative uses	76
4.8	Discussion: Elements of semantic structure	77
4.9	Conclusion: Elements of semantic structure	77
CHAPTER 5
Network structure		79
5.1	Introduction	79
5.1.1	General introduction	79
5.1.2	Introduction to networks	80
5.2	Structure within a word's meaning	80
5.2.1	Introduction	80
5.2.2	Word senses as a structure of meaning types	82
5.2.3	Structure within descriptive senses	87
5.2.4	Structure within non-descriptive senses	92
5.2.5	Discussion: Compositionality of sense structure	93
5.3	Structure among word senses	95
5.3.1	Introduction	95
5.3.2	Sense relations: Synonymy	96
5.3.3	Other sense relations	98
5.3.4	Variation in sense structure	99
5.3.5	Conclusion: Structure among word senses	107
5.4	Structure of sublexical meaning	108
5.4.1	Introduction	108
5.4.2	Dimensions	109
5.4.3	Elements and their sublexical relations	110
5.4.4	Elements' external relations	112
5.4.5	Discussion: Structure of sublexical meanings	113
5.4.6	Conclusion: Structure of sublexical meaning	115

- 5.5 Networks in other strata 116
 - 5.5.1 Networks in clause syntax 116
 - 5.5.2 Networks in group syntax 118
 - 5.5.3 Lexical network: Cohesion 119
- 5.6 Discussion: Network structures in English 120
 - 5.6.1 Whole utterances as networks 120
 - 5.6.2 Networks in imaginative English 121
 - 5.6.3 Relations among one word's various senses: Polysemy 121
- 5.7 Conclusion: Network structures in English 123

CHAPTER 6System structure 125

- 6.1 Introduction 125
 - 6.1.1 General introduction 125
 - 6.1.2 Introduction to system structure 126
- 6.2 System processes 127
 - 6.2.1 Introduction: Grammatical meanings 127
 - 6.2.2 Preliminary process: Obtaining content for the main procedure 128
 - 6.2.3 Processes applying within words and groups 129
 - 6.2.4 Processes applying within figures and figure complexes:
Complementation 134
 - 6.2.5 Processes applying to a whole figure 135
 - 6.2.6 Discussion: System processes 137
 - 6.2.7 Conclusion: Grammatical meaning 138
- 6.3 System procedures: Using the processes 138
 - 6.3.1 Introduction 138
 - 6.3.2 Constructing hierarchic structures 139
 - 6.3.3 Constructing network structures in morphosyntax 140
- 6.4 Discussion: System structure 140
 - 6.4.1 Details not yet explained 140
 - 6.4.2 Signs used for grammatical meaning 141
 - 6.4.3 Grammatical meanings in figurative and other uses 141
 - 6.4.4 Grammatical meaning as backgrounded meaning 142
 - 6.4.5 Other views of grammatical meaning 143
- 6.5 Conclusion: System structure 144

CHAPTER 7Hierarchic structure (1): Figures 147

- 7.1 Introduction 147
 - 7.1.1 Introduction to hierarchies in semantics 147
 - 7.1.2 Introduction to figures 148

7.2	Figure structures	149
7.2.1	Introduction: Processes	149
7.2.2	Material-Process structure	150
7.2.3	Mental-Process structures	151
7.2.4	Relational-Process structures	152
7.2.5	Discussion: Figure structures	153
7.2.6	Conclusion: Summary of figure structures	154
7.3	Processes	155
7.3.1	Introduction: Processes	155
7.3.2	Internal structure of Processes	155
7.3.3	Syntagmatic structure of Processes	156
7.3.4	Semantic class: Process	158
7.3.5	Conclusion: Summary of Processes	159
7.4	Participants	159
7.4.1	Introduction	159
7.4.2	Internal structure	160
7.4.3	Syntagmatic structure	160
7.4.4	Participant as semantic class	161
7.4.5	Discussion: Participant roles and “semantic roles”	161
7.4.6	Conclusion: Summary of Participants	162
7.5	Circumstances	162
7.5.1	Introduction	162
7.5.2	Internal structure of Circumstances	163
7.5.3	Syntagmatic structure of Circumstances	164
7.5.4	Semantic class of Circumstances	166
7.5.5	Discussion: Circumstances	166
7.5.6	Conclusion: Summary of Circumstances	168
7.6	Relations among Participant, Process and Circumstance	168
7.7	Structures larger than the figure	169
7.8	Discussion: Figures	170
7.8.1	Co-ordination and linearity	170
7.8.2	Constructions	171
7.8.3	Ergativity	172
7.8.4	Compositionality in figures	174
7.9	Conclusion: Figures	175

CHAPTER 8

Hierarchies (2): Groups and senses

177

8.1	Introduction	177
8.1.1	General introduction	177
8.1.2	Introduction to groups	177

- 8.2 Entity groups 178
 - 8.2.1 Introduction 178
 - 8.2.2 Classifiers 180
 - 8.2.3 Descriptors 189
 - 8.2.4 Epithets 193
 - 8.2.5 Reinforcers 200
 - 8.2.6 Determiners 203
 - 8.2.7 Postmodifiers 205
 - 8.2.8 Heads 206
 - 8.2.9 Entity group as a unit 211
 - 8.2.10 Discussion of Entity groups 217
- 8.3 Process groups 222
 - 8.3.1 Introduction 222
 - 8.3.2 The Finite 223
 - 8.3.3 Grammatical auxiliaries 224
 - 8.3.4 Modal auxiliaries 225
 - 8.3.5 Negative as modifier 226
 - 8.3.6 Premodifiers 226
 - 8.3.7 Postposed particles as modifiers 231
 - 8.3.8 Heads of Process groups 232
 - 8.3.9 Process groups as units 236
 - 8.3.10 Discussion: Process groups 237
 - 8.3.11 Conclusion: Process groups 239
- 8.4 Property groups 239
 - 8.4.1 Introduction 239
 - 8.4.2 Property groups with Property heads 240
 - 8.4.3 Headless Property groups: Prepositional phrases 242
 - 8.4.4 Conclusion: Property groups 244
- 8.5 Words and morphemes 245
 - 8.5.1 Internal structure 245
 - 8.5.2 Syntagmatic structure 247
 - 8.5.3 Semantic classes: Content meaning 248
 - 8.5.4 Grammatical meaning in words and morphemes 249
 - 8.5.5 Discussion: Compositionality of word senses 249
- 8.6 Discussion: Hierarchic structure in groups and senses 250
 - 8.6.1 Language constraints 250
 - 8.6.2 Semantic change 251
- 8.7 Conclusion: Hierarchic structure in groups and senses 252

CHAPTER 9
Hierarchic structure (3): Information structure	255
9.1 Introduction	255
9.1.1 General introduction	255
9.1.2 Introduction to information structure	255
9.2 Relevance structure	258
9.2.1 Introduction	258
9.2.2 Reporting structure	260
9.2.3 Loose structures	261
9.2.4 Topic-Comment structure	262
9.2.5 Conclusion: Relevance structure	265
9.3 Orientation structure: "Theme"	266
9.3.1 Introduction	266
9.3.2 Classes of Theme	267
9.3.3 Themes occurring at ranks other than the figure	269
9.3.4 Discussion: Orientation structure	270
9.3.5 Conclusion: Orientation structure	271
9.4 Saliency structure: Rheme	272
9.4.1 Introduction	272
9.4.2 Saliency within an information item	273
9.4.3 Saliency of items within an information unit: Rhematic structure	276
9.4.4 Saliency of information units in larger units	279
9.4.5 Conclusion: Saliency structure	281
9.5 Discussion: Information structure	282
9.5.1 Relation of information structure to the bases and elements of language	282
9.5.2 Compositionality	283
9.5.3 Case	284
9.5.4 Cohesion	286
9.6 Conclusion: Information structure	287
9.6.1 Summary	287
9.6.2 Conclusions drawn	288
 CHAPTER 10
Other structures	291
10.1 Introduction	291
10.2 Semantic units with indeterminate structure	291
10.2.1 Introduction	291
10.2.2 Ideational function	292
10.2.3 Interpersonal function	292
10.2.4 Expressive function	294

10.3	Semantic units with multifunctional structure	295
10.3.1	Introduction	295
10.3.2	Holophrases	295
10.3.3	Ideophones	299
10.3.4	Discussion: Semantic units with multifunctional structure	300
10.3.5	Conclusion: Semantic units with multifunctional structure	301
10.4	Semantic units with field structure	301
10.5	Semantic units with wave structure	304
10.5.1	Introduction	304
10.5.2	Wave structure in information	304
10.5.3	Wave structure in aesthetics and emotion	306
10.5.4	Conclusion: Wave structure	306
10.6	Discussion: Other structures	307
10.7	Conclusion: Other structures	307

CHAPTER 11

Realisation (1): Interpersonal functions	309
11.1	Introduction	309
11.1.1	General introduction	309
11.1.2	Introduction to realisation	310
11.2	Realising the Expressive function	312
11.2.1	Introduction	312
11.2.2	Holistic realisation of Expression	312
11.2.3	Phonological realisation of Expression	313
11.2.4	Phonetic realisation of Expression	314
11.2.5	Lexical realisation of Expression	315
11.2.6	Conclusion: Realisation of Expression	315
11.3	Realising emotion and attitude	316
11.3.1	Introduction	316
11.3.2	Conveying emotion by phonology and phonetics	316
11.3.3	Conveying emotion by lexis and syntax	317
11.3.4	Conveying attitude	318
11.3.5	Conclusion: Conveying emotion and attitude	319
11.4	Establishing personal and social relations	319
11.4.1	Establishing personal relations	319
11.4.2	Establishing social relations and social status	320
11.4.3	Discussion: Personal and social relations	320
11.4.4	Conclusion: Personal and social relations	321
11.5	Guiding hearers' use of meaning	321
11.5.1	Introduction: Realisation of grammatical meaning	321
11.5.2	Guiding hearers' overt response	322
11.5.3	Guiding hearers to syntagmatic structure	323
11.5.4	Guiding hearers to information structure	324

11.5.5	Guiding the hearer's attitude to content: Irrealis	330
11.5.6	Discussion: Guiding hearers	332
11.5.7	Conclusion: Guiding hearers	333
11.6	Provoking imaginative responses	333
11.6.1	Introduction	333
11.6.2	How imaginative responses are provoked	334
11.6.3	Discussion: Provoking imaginative responses	337
11.6.4	Conclusion: Provoking imaginative responses	337
11.7	Discussion: Realisation of interpersonal meanings	338
11.8	Conclusion: Realisation of interpersonal functions	339

CHAPTER 12

Realisation (2): Ideational function		341
12.1	Introduction	341
12.1.1	General introduction	341
12.1.2	Introduction to ideational realisation	341
12.2	From intentions to words	343
12.2.1	Introduction	343
12.2.2	Unmarked realisation into words	344
12.2.3	Marked realisation into words	348
12.2.4	Conclusion: From intentions to words	349
12.3	Syntacticisation (1): From words to groups	350
12.3.1	Introduction	350
12.3.2	Grouping the words	351
12.3.3	Structuring the group	352
12.3.4	Ordering the group	356
12.3.5	Signalling the group structure	357
12.3.6	Discussion: Syntacticisation into groups	360
12.3.7	Conclusion: Syntacticisation into groups	360
12.4	Syntacticisation (2): From groups to clauses	361
12.4.1	Introduction	361
12.4.2	Structuring the units	361
12.4.3	Ordering clause units	365
12.4.4	Signalling the structure	366
12.4.5	Conclusion: Syntacticisation into clauses	367
12.4.6	Grouping figures in a clause complex	367
12.5	Physical realisation	368
12.5.1	Introduction	368
12.5.2	Realisation in sound	369
12.5.3	Realisation in writing	371
12.6	Discussion: Realisation of ideational function	372
12.6.1	How we conceptualise realisation	372
12.6.2	Incongruent realisation: Grammatical metaphor	372

12.6.3	Construal	373
12.6.4	Statives	373
12.6.5	Domains offering alternative realisation	374
12.6.6	Comparison between morphosyntactic layers	376
12.7	Conclusion: Realisation of ideational meaning	376
12.8	Conclusion: Both forms of meaning realisation in English	378
12.8.1	Relation between the two forms of realisation	378
12.8.2	Sequence of steps	380
12.8.3	Realisation strategies	381
12.8.4	Adequacy of realisation as a semantic concept	382
12.8.5	Constraints on realisation	383
12.8.6	Looking forward	384

CHAPTER 13

Discussion

385

13.1	Compositionality	385
13.1.1	Introduction	385
13.1.2	Full compositionality	386
13.1.3	Limited compositionality	387
13.2	Word classes	388
13.2.1	Introduction	388
13.2.2	Needlessness and unworkability	388
13.2.3	Lack of explanatory power	389
13.2.4	Support	391
13.2.5	Discussion	392
13.2.6	Conclusion	393
13.3	Prototypes	393
13.3.1	Introduction	393
13.3.2	Needlessness of prototype theory in English grammar	394
13.3.3	Unworkability of prototypes in grammar	395
13.3.4	Confusions in acceptance of prototypes	395
13.3.5	Conclusion: Prototypes	398
13.4	Lexicon	399
13.5	Systematisation	401
13.6	Minor topics for discussion	402
13.6.1	Semiotics	402
13.6.2	Distinction between descriptive and referential use	402
13.6.3	Distinction between grammatical and content meaning	403
13.6.4	Distinction between cognitive and linguistic areas of meaning	403
13.6.5	Formalisation of linguistic description	404
13.6.6	Concept of classes	404
13.6.7	Philosophical tradition in linguistics	405

CHAPTER 14
Conclusion	407
14.1 Introduction	407
14.2 Nature of meaning	407
14.2.1 Introduction	407
14.2.2 Symptomatic meaning	408
14.2.3 Semiotic meaning	409
14.3 Nature of semantic structure	410
14.3.1 Introduction	410
14.3.2 Analytical view of semantic structure (1): Structures of units	410
14.3.3 Analytical view of semantic structure (2): Structures in a medium	412
14.3.4 Functional view of semantic structure	412
14.3.5 Conclusion: Nature of semantic structure	413
14.4 Stratification of the semantic structure	413
14.4.1 Introduction	413
14.4.2 Semantics	414
14.4.3 Lexical items	414
14.4.4 Morphology	415
14.4.5 Morphosyntax	415
14.4.6 Information structure	419
14.4.7 Phonology and graphology	419
14.4.8 Phonetics	421
14.4.9 Discussion: Stratification	422
14.4.10 Conclusion: Stratification	422
14.5 Contribution to semantics	425
