

Contents

Introduction	1
Ageing in Contemporary English Society	5
Ageing Corporealities and Fiction	9
Structure of the Study	15
Chapter One - Authorial attitudes and experience of ageing	19
1.1 Kingsley Amis, Paul Bailey, Julian Barnes	20
1.2 Pat Barker, Anita Brookner, Rose Tremain	22
1.3 Margaret Forster and Deborah Moggach	34
1.4 Angela Carter and Hanif Kureishi	38
1.5 Doris Lessing and Penelope Lively	40
Chapter Two - Body, Self and Society – a Methodological Framework for Ageing Corporealities	47
2.1. Why is the ageing body ugly, dependent and decrepit? The body as a form of social control	49
2.2. The body as symbolic informant: creating stereotypes	56
2.3. Body, self, society and the mask of ageing	66
Chapter Three - Fictionalised Images of Ageing Corporealities	74
3.1. When the body is ugly, when life has been too short: Amis, Bailey, Barnes.....	78
3.2. Frail bodies, active minds: Barker, Brookner, Tremain	92
3.3. Decaying bodies, familiar structures: Forster and Moggach	107
3.4. Beyond corporeal impossibilities in old age: Carter and Kureishi	119
3.5. Female ageing bodies: Lessing and Lively	127
Chapter Four - Corporeality as English Cultural Experience	141

4.1. Ageing in England: traditional cultural stereotypes?	142
4.2. Ageing corporealities and location	149
4.2.1. Urban spaces and ageing corporealities	150
4.2.2. Loneliness and individualism	155
4.3. Attitudes towards the experience of ageing	164
4.3.1. Resilient selves in disintegrating bodies	165
4.3.2. Defying moulds: youthful old bodies?	176
Chapter Five - External Signs of the Ageing Body	184
5.1. Beyond the stereotypical grandmother: the mask of ageing and the performing self	187
5.2. Face, mirror of the soul?	193
5.3. Silvery or unattractive whiteness	210
5.4. The shapeless body, the first step to maturity	220
Chapter Six - Mirrors and Time Consciousness	234
6.1. Who is the One Reflected in the Mirror?	237
6.2. Others as Mirroring Time Consciousness	252
6.3. Invisibility in Old Age	263
Chapter Seven - Homes, Gardens and Pets: Extensions of the Body, Reflections of the Self	274
7.1. The English house and garden – Deteriorating	277
7.2. New Homes, New Selves	299
7.3. In an Old People’s Home	306
7.4. Pets	315
Chapter Eight - Love, Desire and Sex in Old Age	325
8.1. Grandmother: the indefatigable nurturer	328

8.2. Dirty Old Men	343
8.3. The Menopausal Woman, the Middle-aged Man	357
Chapter Nine - The ‘Dys-appearing Body’	383
9.1. The frail body: Rose Tremain, Pat Barker and Julian Barnes’ old characters 392
9.2. The infirm body: Doris Lessing’s Maudie Fowler and Margaret Forster’s Grandma	409
9.3. Cheer Up! Death is round the corner	422
Conclusions	432
Bibliography	445
Index.....	460