

Doctors and Slaves

A medical and demographic history of slavery in the British West Indies,
1680–1834

RICHARD B. SHERIDAN

University of Kansas

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge

London New York New Rochelle

Melbourne Sydney

Contents

Map of the West Indies	frontispiece
List of tables and figures	xi
Preface	xv
Acknowledgments	xix
1. The disease environments and epidemiology	1
The rise of the South Atlantic System	1
The importance of the West Indies	5
Malaria and yellow fever	9
The Army Medical Board's Report	11
Early works on epidemiology	16
The fever books	24
Slave medical manuals	28
Conclusion	40
2. The medical profession	42
Recruitment of doctors	42
Medical gentlemen and quacks	46
Efforts to upgrade the profession	48
Medicine in Cuba and North America	52
Diploma holders from Europe	55
Doctor-scientists and authors	62
Jamaican doctor-scientists and authors	64
Conclusion	69
3. African and Afro-West Indian medicine	72
The two medical cultures: Africa	72
The two medical cultures: West Indies	77
Folk medicine	80
Yaws and its treatment	83

Contents

Slave medical attendants	89
Conclusion	96
4. The Guinea surgeons	98
“To buy or to breed”	98
The Atlantic slave trade	100
West Africa and the slave trade	103
The Guinea surgeons	108
Duties on the coast	113
Diseases and their treatment	115
Preserving the health of seamen and slaves	120
Mortality on the Middle Passage	121
Conclusion	125
5. Slaves and plantations	127
The sugar plantation	127
Treatment of slaves	130
Seasoning imported slaves	131
Clothing and housing	134
The work force	141
Management of absentees’ estates	145
Conclusion	146
6. Labor, diet, and punishment	148
Cane hole digging and night work	148
War and famine	154
Hurricanes, wars, and famine	158
Pickled and salted fish	162
Slave provision grounds	164
Calories and protein	169
Provisioning slaves in the eastern Caribbean	174
The punishment of slaves	178
Conclusion	182
7. Morbidity and mortality	185
“Disorders peculiar to the Negroes”	185
Sickness and accidents	188
Patterns of mortality	194
Malnutrition and diseases of infants and children	200
Diseases of children and adults	207
Conclusion	219

Contents

8. The problem of reproduction	222
Patterns of reproduction	222
Debate on the population failure	225
“To multiply and rear the human species”	228
Pro-natalist policies frustrated	230
The victimization of black youngsters	234
Black women as “work units” and “breeding units”	239
Conclusion	246
9. Smallpox and slavery	249
Introduction	249
Variolation or inoculation	250
Inoculation in Jamaica and England	254
The Jamaican vaccine establishment	258
Other campaigns against smallpox	263
Conclusion	265
10. Slave hospitals	268
Introduction	268
The eighteenth-century experience	269
Practical rules for hospital management	276
Slave hospitals in Guyana	279
Slave hospitals in Jamaica	280
Critics of hospital management	284
Slave hospitals in Cuba and the United States	287
Conclusion	290
11. Plantation medical practice	292
The “irregular” practitioners	292
Grenada doctors and slaves	295
Doctors in the Leeward Islands and Barbados	299
Doctor Jonathan Troup of Dominica	302
Medical practice in Jamaica	306
Doctor John Williamson of Jamaica	309
Medical practice in Cuba and the United States	313
Costs and benefits	315
Conclusion	318
12. Slavery and medicine	321
Slave population attrition	321
Heroic medicine in the West Indies	329

Contents

The quality of plantation health care	333
An epilogue	337
Notes	343
Bibliography	402
Index	413