

Contents

---

Foreword	vii
David H. Reilly
Preface	xii
Acknowledgments	xiv
About the Author	xvi
Introduction and Overview	1
1. Understanding the Changing Times	5
Overview	5
What We Know Now About Student Thinking and Learning	7
The Developmental Nature of the Young Adolescent Learner	9
Making Classrooms “Safe” for Young Adolescent Thinking	12
Summary	15
2. Creating a Safe for Thinking Climate	17
Overview	17
Raise Expectations and Extend Opportunities	18

When Thinking Is Most Likely to Happen	20
Attitudes—Theirs and Yours	22
How Challenge Can Motivate	23
What Does Thinking Look Like?	24
Adding Enough Rigor to Collaborative Learning	26
The “Safe” Middle-Level Classroom	29
Summary	31
3. Challenging Student Thinking and Learning	32
Overview	32
The “Inside” Story on Students’ Brains	33
How Young Adolescents Learn	35
The Thinking-Learning Connection	37
The New View of Intelligence	39
Cognitive Development and the Young Adolescent	42
The “Thinking-Responsive” Middle-Level Classroom	44
Summary	46
4. Interacting Through Questioning and Inquiry	48
Overview	49
The Power of Teacher Questioning	49
Getting All Students to Answer	51
How to Construct “Safe” Questions	54
Why the Next Question Matters	59
Linking Student Thinking With Student Learning	68
Seminars in Session	71
TOP TEN List on “How to Fail at Leading a Stimulating Discussion”	72
Inquiry and Interaction in the Middle-Level Classroom	73
Summary	77
5. Assessing Through Products and Performance	79
Overview	79
What’s New in Assessment for Young Adolescents and Why	81
A Few More Examples	86
The Assessment Dilemma	87
Performance Assessment and Evaluation	91
Developmental Assessment in “Process”	94
When Thinking Is Observable	95
How to “Rate” Students’ Oral Responses	100

How Can We Hold Students Accountable for Learning?	104
Meaningful Assessment in the Middle-Level Classroom	105
Summary	106
6. Extending for Meaning and Enrichment	108
Overview	108
Linking Content With Thinking Processes	109
Curricular Themes and Real-World Connections	112
Thematic Planning and Young Adolescent Learning	114
Where Does Performance Fit In?	117
Dealing With All Those Interests and Abilities	121
Young Adolescent Writers at Work	124
How Technology Can Be a “Turn-On” to Learning	127
Beyond the Middle-Level Classroom	130
Summary	132
7. Anticipating the Challenge Ahead	134
Overview	134
Education at the Crossroads	135
Moving in the Right Direction	137
The Dynamics of the Future Middle-Level Classroom	139
Summary	145
References	147
Index	153