

Cold War Encounters in US-Occupied Okinawa

Women, Militarized Domesticity, and Transnationalism in East Asia

Mire Koikari

University of Hawaii at Manoa

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgments	page vii
Note on Japanese names	x
List of illustrations	xi
1 Re-thinking gender and militarism in Cold War Okinawa	1
Re-thinking women, home, and empire in the US occupation of Okinawa	4
Chapter organization	19
2 Cultivating feminine affinity and affiliation with Americans: Cold War people-to-people encounters and women's club activities	22
USCAR, Cold War occupation, and grassroots people-to-people encounters	28
The USCAR Women's Club and tales of feminine friendship in Cold War Okinawa	38
Staging Cold War equality and mutuality: the Ryukyuan–American Women's Symposium and the Ryukyuan–American Cultural Center	49
Conclusions	63
3 “The world is our campus”: domestic science and Cold War transnationalism between Michigan and Okinawa	65
MSU, John Hannah, and Cold War international education	69
Domestic science, women's empowerment, and Cold War multiculturalism	77
“Manifest domesticity,” militarization, and Cold War transnationalism	88
Conclusions	98
4 Building a bridge across the Pacific: domestic training and Cold War technical interchange between Okinawa and Hawaii	100
“The path of the United States into a future of world understanding”: Hawaii in the Cold War Asia-Pacific	107
Baron Goto and the politics of international technical and educational interchange in the Cold War Pacific	115
Domesticity, technology, and pedagogy of multiculturalism in Cold War Hawaii	124

	Tales of home, immigration, and American “democracy” in Cold War Okinawa	136
	Conclusions	144
5	Mobilizing homes, empowering women: Okinawan home economists and Cold War domestic education	146
	UR home economics: the beginning	150
	Nurturing women’s aspirations: narratives of science, domesticity, and women’s empowerment in Cold War Okinawa	153
	Pursuing science in Cold War Okinawa: women, militarized knowledge, and the production of post-war bodies	165
	Mobilizing Okinawan homes for the Cold War: grassroots reform	179
	Conclusions	183
6	Cultivating feminine affinity and affiliation with the homeland: grassroots women’s exchange between Mainland Japan and Okinawa	185
	Cultivating Cold War affinity and affiliation between Okinawa and Japan	189
	Training young women in Okinawa: the Future Homemakers of Okinawa	200
	The journal “ Kateika Kyōiku ” (Home Economics Education)	209
	Conclusions	217
	Epilogue	219
	Bibliography	222
	Index	231