

History and Hope in American Literature

Models of Critical Patriotism

Ben|Railton

ROWMAN & LITTLEFIELD
Lanham • Boulder • New York • London

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Crucial Contingencies and Critical Patriotism	xi
1 African American Histories and Hopes: Charles Chesnutt's The Marrow of Tradition and David Bradley's The Chaneysville Incident	1
2 Native American Histories and Hopes: Leslie Marmon Silko's Ceremony and Louise Erdrich's Love Medicine	25
3 Great Depression Histories and Hopes: John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath and Carlos Bulosan's America Is in the Heart	49
4 Caribbean American Histories and Hopes: Junot Díaz's The Brief Wondrous Life of Oscar Wao and Edwidge Danticat's The Dew Breaker	73
5 AIDS Epidemic Histories and Hopes: Tony Kushner's Angels in America and Alice Hoffman's At Risk	97
6 Refugee Histories and Hopes: Mark Bixler's The Lost Boys of Sudan and Dave Eggers's What Is the What	115
Conclusion: Finding the Road to Hope: Cormac McCarthy's The Road	131
Further Reading	135
Index	143
About the Author	149