

The Fall

A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THE END OF COMMUNISM IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, EAST GERMANY, HUNGARY AND POLAND

Steven Saxonberg
Uppsala University, Sweden

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	xi
Seymore Martin Lipset
Acknowledgements	xv
Abbreviations	xvii
Part I: Theory
Chapter 1: The Collapse	3
The Problem	3
The Events	5
Conventional Explanations	13
Explanations for the Differences in the Process of Change	18
Explanations of Revolutionary Change	20
Explanations of Institutional Compromise	24
Summary	30
Disposition and More Specific Questions	32
Chapter 2: The Main Framework	35
Choice of Countries	35
Towards a Neo-Marxian Approach	38
Class Analysis	40
Interests	53
Political Economy	61
The Next Steps	63
Part II: The Underlying Causes of the Collapse
Chapter 3: The Economic Situation	67
Economic Decline	67
Subjective Interpretations of the Economy	69
The Causes of the Economic Crisis	77
The Failure of Economic Policies	78
The Oil Crisis	79
Military Spending	80
Changes in Technology and the World Economy	81
Conclusion on the Causes of the Economic Crisis	93
Chapter 4: Implementing Economic Reforms	95
A Dialectical Model	95
Conflicts of Institutional Interests	100

The Conflict between the National and Soviet Ruling Elites	104
The Conflict between the Party Elite and the Workers	106
The Conflict between the Party and the State	107
The Conflict of Interest between Different Levels of the Party-State	121
The Conflicts of Interest within Levels	123
Conclusion	125
Chapter 5: The Rise of Gorbachev and the Fall of Legitimacy	127
The Gorbachev Factor	127
The Loss of Legitimacy	143
Summary	163
Part III: Differences in the Process of Collapse
Chapter 6: Regime Policy Before 1988	167
Pragmatic Acceptance	167
Policy Before 1988	183
Conclusion	202
Chapter 7: Civil Society and the Degree of Liberalization	207
Terminology	207
Reformist Poland and Hungary	211
The Anti-Reformist GDR and ČSSR	220
Conclusion	224
Chapter 8: Social Movements Before 1988	227
Failed Uprisings: Participation in East European Social Movements	227
Recent Explanations of Social Movements in 1989	229
A Neo-Marxian Synthesis	231
Exemplifying the Partial Model: The Unsuccessful Revolts	245
Conclusion on Uprisings	262
Chapter 9: Institutional Compromise	265
The Discourse	265
Poland	271
Hungary	283
Conclusion	298

Chapter 10: Non-violent Revolutions	301
The GDR	303
The ČSSR	316
Conclusion	356
Chapter 11: Summary of the Model	361
1. Crisis of the Economic Base	361
2. The Decline of Ideological Legitimacy	363
3. The Failure of Economic Reforms	364
4. Further Economic Decline and the Complete Loss of Ideological Legitimacy	365
5. Further Decline: Gorbachev and the Choice of Liberalization or Retrenchment	366
6. A Potentially Revolutionary Situation Emerges	369
7. A. Reformers Start Negotiations in Poland and Hungary	375
7. B. The Orthodox Regimes Remain Paralyzed in the Face of Revolution	377
Theoretical Implications	381
Epilogue: The Rightwing Shift after 1989	387
Czechoslovakia	387
East Germany	391
Hungary	392
Poland	393
Appendix: Notes on the Interviews and Documentation	397
Interviews	397
Documentation	402
References	405
Index	431