

The Eugenic Mind Project

Robert A. Wilson

The MIT Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts
London, England

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments xi

I Eugenic Activities: Probing Eugenics 1

1 Standpointing Eugenics 3

2 Characterizing Eugenics 25

2.1 The Short History of Eugenics 25

2.2 A Galtonian Start 27

2.3 Eugenics as Applied Science 31

2.4 Between Science and Social Movement 34

2.5 Eugenics, Race, and Ethnocentrism 36

2.6 Galton, Mental Abilities, and the Weak-Minded 40

2.7 Eugenics and the Mentally Deficient 42

2.8 The Long Past of Eugenics 46

3 Specifying Eugenic Traits 51

3.1 What Is a Eugenic Trait? 51

3.2 Research Publications 53

3.3 Popular Culture 59

3.4 Eugenic Laws: Marriage and Immigration 60

3.5 Sexual Sterilization Legislation 63

3.6 Alberta at the Legislative Margins 65

3.7 Institutionalization and the Social Mechanics of Eugenics 69

3.8 Mental Defectives and the Mentally Ill: Beyond Consent 72

3.9 Three Eugenic Traits: Syphilis, Huntington's, and Epilepsy 73

4 Subhumanizing the Targets of Eugenics 77

4.1 What Sorts of People Should There Be? 77

4.2 The Pursuit of Human Perfection and Life-Worthiness 79

4.3	Eliminating Defectives in Medicine's Short History	83
4.4	Tough Medicine in Postwar Alberta	86
4.5	Rational Ethics: Cognitive Disability in the Eugenic Now	88
4.6	Subhumanization and Standpoint's Complexities: Ashley X	93
4.7	Life-Worthiness and Human Variation	97
II	Eugenic Variations: The Persistence of Eugenics	99
5	Where Do Ideas of Human Variation Come From?	101
5.1	Standpoint, Prosociality, and Human Variation	101
5.2	The Puzzle of Marked Variation	103
5.3	Four Initial Desiderata	105
5.4	Variation, Subnormalcy, and Categories of Disablement	106
5.5	Biopolitics and the History of Eugenics	110
5.6	Evaluating the Appeal to Biopolitics	113
5.7	Constructivism's Open Question and Further Desiderata	117
5.8	Conclusion	119
6	A Socio-cognitive Framework for Marked Variation	121
6.1	A Hobbesian Prelude: Born to Be Not-So-Wild	121
6.2	Sociality and Prosociality	122
6.3	Human Sociality and Its Cognitive Demands	123
6.4	Shared Intentionality and Collective Social Action	126
6.5	Sketching the Socio-cognitive Framework	128
6.6	Sorts of People, Normativity, and Marked Variation	130
6.7	Clarifying What First-Person Plural Mechanisms Are	133
6.8	Return of the Seven	136
6.9	Standpoint Eugenics in the Socio-cognitive Framework	138
7	Back Doors, Newgenics, and Eugenics Underground	141
7.1	Newgenics	141
7.2	The Prenatal Back Door to Eugenics	143
7.3	Eugenic Subhumanization and a Continuing Preoccupation	148
7.4	Recasting Debate over the Expressivist Objection	149
7.5	Outing Eugenic Logic in Bioethics: Agar and Savulescu	152
7.6	Diversity and Neoliberalism	158
7.7	Eugenics as Private Enterprise	160
7.8	Eugenic Techniques of Silencing	162
7.9	Conserving Disability	163

8	Eugenics as Wrongful Accusation	167
8.1	Persistent Eugenic Pasts	167
8.2	Subhumanizing Tendencies and Procedural Indifference	168
8.3	An Appeal to Wrongfulness	171
8.4	The Case of Ritual Sexual Abuse	173
8.5	Beyond Moral Panic, Groupthink, and Evil's Banality	175
8.6	Herman on Witnessing and Complicity	177
8.7	From Innocent Bystander to Ally and Advocate	179
8.8	The Psycho-social Dynamics of Wrongful Accusation	183
8.9	Persistence Redux	186
III	Eugenic Voices: Knowing Agency at the Margins	193
9	Knowing Agency	195
9.1	Marginal Knowing	195
9.2	Who Cares about Who Knows?	198
9.3	Cognitive Disability and Its Challenges	203
9.4	Vignettes and Voices	205
9.5	Epistemology Impoverished and Knowing Agency	208
9.6	The Politics of Epistemic Apartheid	210
10	Eugenics Unbound: Survivorship for the Subhuman	213
10.1	Standpoint Theory and Knowing Agency	213
10.2	Standpoint Agents for Class and Gender	214
10.3	Race, Lived Reality, and Group-Based Agency	217
10.4	Generalizing Standpoint Theory	219
10.5	Joint and Extended Action in Intellectual Disability	222
10.6	Intrinsic Heterogeneity and Sorts of People	225
10.7	Recovering the Voices of Eugenic Survivorship	226
10.8	Narratives, Stories, and Standpoint	228
10.9	Concluding Thoughts	231

Notes 235

References 271

Index 297