

Gender, Race, and American Science Fiction

Reflections on Fantastic Identities

Jason Haslam

Contents

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction: “Kindred Mysteries”:
The Fantastic Identities of SF 1

PART I Race/Gender/Science/Fiction

1 “The races of mankind”: The Race of Gender in
“The Birth-mark” and Mizora 43

2 The Whiteness of Manly Pulp from Tarzan’s Jungle to Buck Rogers’ Phalectrocentrism 73

PART II Virtual Whiteness

3 The Möbius Strip of Identity and Privilege in Black No More 111

4 Coded Discourse: Romancing the (Electronic)
Shadow in The Matrix 134

PART III Muting Utopia

5 Bridging Divides in The Santaroga Barrier
and All Tomorrow’s Parties 163

x	Contents
6	Octavia Butler's Exceptional Minds, Collective Identities, and the Moynihan Report	194
	Afterword: The Robot's Howl: SF as Death Drive	212
	Index	231