

Addiction and Weakness of Will

Lubomira Radoilska

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Introduction: The moral psychology of addiction and weakness of will ix

- 1 Addiction and voluntary control 1
  - 1.1 Wallace on responsibility and control 3
  - 1.2 The disparity of actions and attitudes 5
  - 1.3 Responsibility for addiction: Excuses and exemptions 10
  - 1.4 Responsible actions and omissions revisited 18
  - 1.5 Positive moral appraisal 27
- 2 Addiction and rational judgment 33
  - 2.1 Smith on responsibility for attitudes 34
  - 2.2 Responsible irrationality 38
    - 2.2.1 Conflicting attitudes 41
    - 2.2.2 Implications for paradigm cases: Patterns of awareness and wholehearted attitudes 45
  - 2.3 Is responsibility best understood as a cluster concept? 48
  - 2.4 Addiction and agential evaluative stance 54
    - 2.4.1 De Quincey: Confessions of an English Opium-Eater 55
    - 2.4.2 Dostoevsky: The Gambler 60
- 3 Weakness of will and moral appraisal 67
  - 3.1 Arpaly on responsibility in the absence of control 68
  - 3.2 Standard akrasia 71
  - 3.3 Inverse akrasia 80
    - 3.3.1 Inept Burglar 80
    - 3.3.2 Neoptolemus 82
    - 3.3.3 Huckleberry Finn 85
  - 3.4 Strength versus goodness of will 91
    - 3.4.1 Mizogushi 91
- 4 Before weakness of will 95
  - 4.1 Holton on weakness of will 96
  - 4.2 Aristotle on akrasia 97

4.2.1	The logical form of akrasia	98
4.2.2	The blameworthiness of akrasia	102
4.2.3	The pre-intentionality of akrasia	105
4.3	Revisiting weakness of will	110
4.4	Weakness of will as a failure to resist akrasia	115
5	Addiction and weakness of will: An integrated account	119
5.1	Action as actualization	120
5.2	Success in action and the guise of the good	124
5.3	Less than successful actions	130
5.4	Concluding remarks: The offspring of akrasia	133
	References	140
	Index	146