

Interperspectival Content

Peter Ludlow

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction	1
0.1 Perspectivalism	6
0.2 Tensism	12
0.3 A-Series/B-Series Compatibility	13
0.4 Semantic Accountability	15
0.5 The Plan	22
1. Why We Need Interperspectival Content	25
2. Tense and Interperspectival Content	35
2.1 Tense	35
2.2 Perspectival Position and Interperspectival Content	40
2.3 The Varieties of Perspectivalism	45
2.4 Sloppy Thinking?	49
3. Communication Using Interperspectival Contents	56
3.1 Sense and Interperspectival Content	56
3.2 The Cognitive Dynamics of Attitude Attribution	65
3.3 Microlanguages and Local Theories	68
3.4 The Cognitive Dynamics of Indexicals and Interperspectival Contents	69
3.5 Rip van Winkle	72
4. Some Alternative Accounts of Interperspectival Content	76
4.1 Token Indexical Theories	77
4.2 Tense as a Mere Psychological Content	88
4.3 Lewis on the De Se	93
4.4 Kaplanian Character and Its Deployment	106
5. Computation, Information, and Interperspectival Content	121
5.1 Computational States and Interperspectival Content	121
5.2 Information and Interperspectival Content	129
6. A-Series/B-Series Compatibilism	134
6.1 McTaggart's Objection	134
6.2 The Problem of the Moving Now	137
6.3 An Interlude on the Dynamic Lexicon	139
6.4 How A-Series/B-Series Compatibilism Works	141
6.5 Compatibilism and the Flow of Time	143

7. Some Additional Metaphysical Questions	148
7.1 The Truth-Maker Problem	148
7.2 Humean Supervenience	151
8. Interspectival Content and Physical Theory	155
8.1 The Alleged Relativistic Problem for the Tenser	156
8.2 On the Alleged Innocence of the Earlier-Than/Later-Than Relation	161
8.3 The Need for Interspectival Content in Scientific Practice	174
8.4 The Need for Interspectival Content in Scientific Theory	178
9. Conclusion	182
Appendix: Presentism	185
A1 Is Presentism Either Trivial or False?	185
A2 Presentism and the Problem of Temporal Anaphora	199
Bibliography	221
Index	231