

Contents

List of Illustrations / vii

Acknowledgments / ix

Introduction: Writing Race into Canada's International History / 3

LAURA MADOKORO and FRANCINE MCKENZIE

A Provocation: Anti-Asian Exclusion and the Making and Unmaking of White Supremacy in Canada / 25

HENRY YU

1 The Limits of "Brotherly Love": Rethinking Canada-Caribbean Relations in the Early Twentieth Century / 38

PAULA HASTINGS

2 Asian Canadians and the First World War: Challenging White Supremacy / 54

JOHN PRICE

3 Race, Empire, and World Order: Robert Borden and Racial Equality at the Paris Peace Conference of 1919 / 73

FRANCINE MCKENZIE

- 4 Language, Race, and Power: French Canada's Relationship with Haiti in the 1930s and 1940s / 94
SEAN MILLS
 - 5 Race, Gender, and International "Relations": African Americans and Aboriginal People on the Margins in Canada's North, 1942–48 / 112
P. WHITNEY LACKENBAUER
 - 6 Race, the Commonwealth, and the United Nations: From Imperialism to Internationalism in Canada, 1940–60 / 139
DAN GORMAN
 - 7 "Belated Signing": Race-Thinking and Canada's Approach to the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees / 160
LAURA MADOKORO
 - 8 Romanticism and Race: Escott Reid, the Department of External Affairs, and the Sundering of Canada-India Relations, 1952–57 / 183
RYAN TOUHEY
 - 9 "Awakening Africa": Race and Canadian Views of Decolonizing Africa / 206
KEVIN A. SPOONER
 - 10 Crisis of the Nation: Race and Culture in the Canada-Quebec-France Triangle of the 1960s / 228
DAVID MEREN
 - 11 "Red Indians" in Geneva, "Papuan Headhunters" in New York: Race, Mental Maps, and Two Global Appeals in the 1920s and 1960s / 254
DAVID WEBSTER
- Conclusion: Race and the Future of Canadian International History / 284
DAVID MEREN
- Selected Bibliography / 301
- Contributors / 309
- Index / 312