

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
References, Abbreviations and Technical Terms	viii
Bibliography	xi
INTRODUCTION	I
1. Why did Paul write this letter?	3
(a) Why a letter to Rome at all?	3
(b) Why a letter of this length and on these topics?	5
2. Social factors in the study of Romans	16
3. Place and date of writing	18
4. Authorship and integrity; the place of Chapter 16	19
(a) The view that Romans originally had fifteen chapters	20
(b) The view that Romans originally had fourteen chapters	24
(c) Tentative reconstruction of the history of the end of Romans	25
(d) The view that extraneous matter has intruded into Romans	26
(i) The theory of J. C. O'Neill	26
(ii) The theory of W. Munro	29
5. Methods of authorship	32
6. The structure of the letter	33
7. The place of chapters 9–11	37

CONTENTS

8. The place of the Law in the thought of Romans	39
9. Power-language in Romans	51

COMMENTARY

Index of References	359
Index of Authors	371
Index of Subjects	375