

Contents

Acknowledgments	x
Introduction	xi
1. The Book of Ruth as a Key to Gynocentric Reading of Scripture	1
1. The Female Voice in Ruth	1
2. Women's and Men's Perspectives	6
3. Female Power and Male Authority	8
4. The Problem of the Genealogy	10
5. The Canonical Role of Gynocentric Texts	12
2. The Gentile Foremothers of the Messiah	17
1. Why Are These Women Here?	17
2. The Ancestry of Tamar	28
3. The Marriage of Rahab	34
4. The Canaanite Women	41
3. Elizabeth and Mary in Luke 1: Reading a Gynocentric Text Intertextually	47
1. Luke 1:5-80: A Gynocentric Text	47

CONTENTS

2. Mary as Agent of God's Salvation of Israel	55
3. Mary's Lowly Status	69
4. Anna of the Tribe of Asher	77
1. Introduction	77
2. Where Were the Asherites?	79
3. Jerusalem and the Median Diaspora	88
4. Anna, Phanuel, and the Book of Tobit	92
5. Anna in Gospel and History	98
Additional Note A: The Northern Tribes in Exile in 4 Ezra 13	101
Additional Note B: The Place of Origin of the Book of Tobit	103
5. Joanna the Apostle	109
1. On the Road with Jesus and His Disciples	110
2. Jewish Women as Owners of Property	121
3. Wife of Herod's "Steward"	135
4. Wife of Chuza the Nabatean	150
5. Patron or Servant?	161
6. Joanna Also Known as Junia	165
7. Joanna as Apostolic Witness	186
8. The Historical Joanna — a Sketch	194
9. Readers on the Road with Joanna	199
6. Mary of Clopas	203
1. Who Was She?	204
2. Her Role in the Mission of the Church in Palestine	213
Additional Note on Tradition in John 19:25-27	218
7. The Two Salomes and the Secret Gospel of Mark	225
1. Salome the Sister of Jesus	226
2. Salome the Disciple of Jesus	234
3. The Secret Gospel of Mark	247

Contents

Appendix: Some Extracanonical Texts about Salome the Disciple of Jesus	254
8. The Women and the Resurrection: The Credibility of Their Stories	257
1. Introduction	257
2. The Formation of the Gospel Resurrection Narratives	262
3. The Credibility of Women	268
4. The Women in Matthew	277
5. The Women in Luke	279
6. The Women in John	283
7. The Women in Mark	286
8. The Women as Authoritative Witnesses in the Early Church	295
9. The Women in the Kerygmatic Summaries	304
Index of Names of Ancient People and Places	311
Index of Modern Authors	320
Index of Ancient Literature	327