

Contents of the Eighth Volume.

LETTERS to and from EDWARD BLOUNT Esq.

From 1714 to 1725. p. 3

LETTER

- I. O F the geography of Homer, a map done by the author. The State of the times: the siege of Barcelona, the Queen's death, the condition of the English Roman-Catholics: Wishes for the peace of the nation.
- II. From Mr. Blount. Answer to the former. His temper in religion and politics.
- III. From Mr. Blount. His disposition to quiet; reflections on the affair of Preston: An invitation into the country.
- IV. An account of the death of Mr. Wycherley.
- V. Contemplations on the pleasures of separate spirits, on the narrow conceptions of men, the vanity of human knowledge, the variety of opinions in religion, and the great duty of charity.
- VI. Consolations under persecution: The duty of mutual assistance: Universal Charity. The author leaving Windsor-Forest.

VOL. VIII.

a

VII. From

LETTER

- VII. From Mr. Blount.
- VIII. After the affair of Preston. The author's removal, change of life, and resignation to it.
- IX. To Mr. Blount, after his retirement into Flanders. On the history of Jeffery of Monmouth, &c.
- X. On the death of the author's father.
- XI. To Mr. Blount.
- XII. On Mr. Blount's recovery from an illness: Advice to sell his estate.
- XIII. Of his manner of life in the country, and of the author's near the town.
- XIV. A description of a grotto.
- XV. On the approach of winter, hospitality, and a cheerful family.

LETTERS to and from the Honourable
ROBERT DIGBY.

From 1717 to 1724. p. 42

LETTER

- I. After a fit of sickness. Of the Tragedy of Gorboduc. The author's progress in translating Homer's Iliad.
- II. Excuse for writing carelessly: The humour of the town.
- III. From Mr. Digby. Answer to the former.
- IV. On

LETTER

- IV. On the finishing his translation of the Iliad. His situation at Twickenham, Planting, The death of a friend.
- V. From Mr. Digby. Answer to the former.
- VI. From Mr. Digby. On the South-sea-year.
- VII. Answer to the former.
- VIII. IX. From Mr. Digby. On the same subject.
- X. Character of Dr. Arbuthnot and his brother. Death of a friend.
- XI. Character of the Digby-Family.
- XII. Lord Bathurst's Wood; the camp in Hyde-Park; the Bishop of Rochester's conversation.
- XIII. A Winter-invitation to a fire-side.
- XIV. From Mr. Digby. A Letter of friendship: The disadvantages of an ill constitution. Consolation in friends of integrity. Their manner of life in the country preferred to that in the town.
- XV. On the same subject.
- XVI.
- XVII. On the season of Christmas: Customs of hospitality: Charity and good works, where they are yet subsisting.
- XVIII. To the Hon. Edward Digby, on his brother's death.

LETTERS to and from Dr. ATTERBURY
Bishop of ROCHESTER.

From 1716 to 1723. p. 80

LETTER

- I. From the Bishop of Rochester, Concerning Mr. Pope's general preface to his works.
- II. From the same.
- III. From the Bishop of Rochester. On occasion of the death of Mr. Pope's father.
- IV. The answer.
- V. On the fate of the South-Sea.
- VI. From the Bishop of Rochester. Of Mr. Dryden's monument: The Arabian Tales: The South-Sea scheme.
- VII. From the same. On a manuscript of Huetius, and the epitaph on Mr. Harcourt.
- VIII. From the Lord Chancellor Harcourt, on the epitaph of his son.
- IX. From the Bishop of Rochester. On his ill health. Waller's verses on sickness. Mr. Prior's funeral.
- X. From the same. His love of the country. A passage in Tully. Of Shakespear, and the publication of Mr. Addison's works.
- XI. To the Bishop of Rochester.
- XII. From

LETTER.

- XII. From the Bishop. On a character drawn by the author.
- XIII. To the Bishop in the country: Wishes for his quiet.
- XIV. From the Bishop of Rochester, his desire of quiet, and love of books.
- XV. An invitation to Twickenham: The vanity and emptiness of the world.
- XVI. From the Bishop of Rochester. An answer to the former. His dislike of great men: Preparation for his burial-place in Westminster-Abbey.
- XVII. From the same, on the same subject. The state of his mind, and the world's mistake of his character.
- XVIII. From the same. More concerning men of quality. Of Milton's manuscript, and Agonistes.
- XIX. The Duke of Marlborough's funeral. The author's resolution to keep clear of flattery.
- XX. From the Bishop. Answer to the former. Application of some verses of Horace to the Duke of Marlborough's funeral.
- XXI. From the Bishop of Rochester in the Tower.
- XXII. The answer.

vi CONTENTS.

LETTER

- XXIII. The author's last letter to the Bishop of Rochester.
XXIV. From the Bishop of Rochester.
XXV. On the death of his daughter.
-

LETTERS to and from Mr. GAY, &c.

From 1712 to 1732. p. 142

LETTER

- I. The author's opinion of Mr. Gay's merit and modesty.
II. His desire to do him service, and advice as to the study of poetry.
III. Concerning painting; Mr. Gay's poem of the Fan.
IV. To Mr. Gay on his return from Hanover after the Queen's death. Advice about politics.
V. After the death of the author's father, and the sale of his estate. Mr. Gay's poem to Mr. Lowndes, and his expectations at court.
VI. From Mr. Gay at Bath; on the remarkable death of two lovers by lightning, with their epitaph.
VII. To Mr. Gay at Bath; the commitment of the Bishop of Rochester to the Tower.
VIII. Of

LETTER

- VIII. *Of disappointments from great men :
Friends commemorated.*
- IX. Assurances of remembrance in absence.
- X. XI. XII. To Mr. Gay in a dangerous sickness.
- XIII. On his recovery, and Mr. Congreve's death.
- XIV. To the Hon. Mrs. —
- XV. Excuse for not writing. Of Mr. Fen-ton's death.
- XVI. A congratulation to Mr. Gay, on the end of his expectations at court. The innocence of a private life, and the happiness of independency.
- XVII. From Mr. Gay, in the country. Thoughts of buying a farm, and about the Dun-ciad.
- XVIII. To Mr. Gay, in the country. Wishes to serve him.
- XIX. Complaints of his absence, and some envy at his situation.
- XX. The author more and more inclined to retirement.
- XXI. More of the same. Concern for his friend's absence, affection to his person, and wishes for his happiness.

LETTER

- XXII. Desiring him to return to town and resume the study of Poetry. The state of wit at that time.
- XXIII. On the same subject. The death of Wilks the player: Verses on the hermitage at Richmond, &c.
- XXIV. From Mr. Gay. His ill state of health. His opinion of writing panegyric.
- XXV. From Mr. Cleland to Mr. Gay.
- XXVI. Mr. Pope to the Earl of Burlington.
- XXVII. The author's bad health, complaints of absence, and some advice to his friend.
- XXVIII. On the death of Mr. Gay, his mother's illness, and other melancholy incidents.
- XXIX. To Hugh Bethel Esq. praise of humanity and good-nature. The benefits of equality in friendship.
- XXX. To the same. On the death of the Earl of C. —
- XXXI. On his mother's recovery: The melancholy offices of friends. A prospect of the town upon the death of the King.
- XXXII. On

LETTER

- XXXII. On the publishing his Letters. The situation of the author, his pleasures and his friendships.
- XXXIII. To the Earl of Peterborow. His love of gardening. Reflections on Titles. Dearth of news.
- XXXIV. From the Earl of Peterborow. Stowe-gardens: Temper of women: His love of laziness, and the reason.
- XXXV. Answer to the former.
- XXXVI. From the Earl of Peterborow. His dislike of coming to town: The Charitable Corporation; more concerning women.
- XXXVII. From the Earl of Peterborow from his garden: his idea of the Golden Age, and unwillingness to come to town.
- XXXVIII. From the same. Desire to see Dr. Swift. Alteration in his passions, and from whence.
- XXXIX. From Dr. Swift to the Earl of Peterborow.
- XL. A consultation about designing a garden: Various opinions, and some general reflections.
- XLI. To Mr. C—— expostulatory on the hardships done an unhappy lady, &c.
- XLII. To

LETTER

- XLII. To Mr. Richardson.
 XLIII. To the same; after Mrs. Pope's death.
 XLIV. To the same.
 XLV. To Mr. B. concerning the Essay on Man, &c.
 XLVI. Concern for the loss of friends.
 XLVII. From Dr. Arbuthnot in his last sickness. His dying request to the author.
 XLVIII. The answer.

The character of Katharine late Duchess of Buckinghamshire and Norbanby p. 246

ERRATA.

- Page 33, 34 for my whole r. your whole 44 l. 12 for not be r. to be
 95 col. 2 l. 6 for often r. after this.
 128 l. 11 for that that r. than that
 144 l. 2 for Decem. 24, 1721. r. 1712.

LETTERS