

Table of Contents

Foreword
by John Donnelly, M.D.	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction
by Norman L. Paul, M.D.	xvii
 PART 1 THE FIELD OF FAMILY THERAPY
1. The Therapist's Route to Family Therapy	2
2. The Family's Route to Family Therapy	6
3. Goals and Indications	15
4. Conceptual Framework	28
5. Techniques and Practices: Problems in Conducting Family Interviews	38
6. Premises About Family Therapy	47
7. Ethical Issues in Family Treatment	60
Appendix 1: Bibliography of Marriage and Family Therapy	70
Appendix 2: Family Therapy Questionnaire	87
 PART 2 THE CASE HISTORY METHOD IN THE STUDY OF FAMILY PROCESS
8. Family Case Histories	109
9. Principles for Compiling a Family Case History	115
10. Summarized Case History of the Mario C. Family	126
11. Contrasts in Values: Puerto Rican Working-Class and American Middle-Class Preferences	149
12. Contrasts in Values Within the Nuclear Family of Mario C.	168

13. Contrasts in Values in the Extended Family Network	177
Appendix A: Family Case History Outline	187
Appendix B: Case History of the Mario C. Family	196
 PART 3 INTEGRATION AND CONFLICT IN FAMILY BEHAVIOR
14. Introduction	246
15. Points of Reference for the Analysis of Family Processes	253
16. The Relation of the Family to the Social System	256
17. The System of Values to Which the Family Is Oriented	269
18. Integrations and Mal-integrations in Spanish- American Family Patterns	281
19. Integrations and Mal-integrations in American Middle-Class Family Patterns	289
Notes and References	302
20. Epilogue	308
GAP Committee Membership	313
 Index	 319