

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements .....	ix
List of illustrations .....	xi
Introduction .....	1
The collection's historiography .....	5
Trends and methods: distributing representations .....	11
A new look at the collection .....	17
Chapter One Opening up new worlds: sixteenth-century travel literature and collections of voyages .....	23
1.1 Europe's overseas expansion .....	23
1.2 Cosmographic literature .....	29
1.3 The first collections of voyages .....	35
1.4 Ramusio's Navigazioni et Viaggi .....	37
1.5 Hakluyt's Principall Navigations .....	41
1.6 The De Bry collection and its place within the genre ....	46
Chapter Two From goldsmiths to publishers: The transformation of the De Bry family .....	51
2.1 The early years: Liège and Strasbourg (1528–1577) .....	51
2.2 From goldsmiths to engravers: Antwerp and London (1578–1588) .....	57
2.3 From engravers to publishers: The De Bry firm in Frankfurt (1588–1609) .....	64
2.4 Publishers among humanists .....	69
Chapter Three A prosperous publishing house: The De Brys as booksellers in Frankfurt and Oppenheim .....	79
3.1 The commercial fortunes of the firm .....	79
3.2 Under the Elector's wings: The De Bry firm in Oppenheim (1609–1620) .....	90
3.3 The final years (1621–1626) .....	99
3.4 Re-interpreting the De Brys: booksellers and Calvinists .....	103

Chapter Four	The making of the collection of voyages .....	107
4.1	The magnum opus of the officina .....	107
4.2	The collection conceived .....	112
4.3	The collection produced .....	116
Chapter Five	Plants and animals: The natural world in the De Bry collection .....	139
5.1	The representation of herbs, plants, and trees .....	141
5.2	The representation of animals .....	149
5.3	The wild species of the overseas world .....	151
5.4	Attempts at domestication .....	158
5.5	The case of the elephant .....	163
5.6	One step too far: man and animal intertwined .....	167
Chapter Six	Native inhabitants: physical appearances and identities .....	175
6.1	Eating and drinking in the overseas world .....	175
6.2	Cannibalism .....	182
6.3	Respecting the human body: mutilation and self-mutilation .....	188
6.4	Natives undressed: nakedness .....	195
6.5	Natives dressed up: New World feathers .....	199
6.6	Body language .....	205
6.7	Rites of passage .....	212
Chapter Seven	From gods to idols: The expansion of heathendom .....	219
7.1	Paganism in focus .....	219
7.2	Paganism compared .....	228
7.3	Paganism enhanced .....	233
7.4	The omnipresent devil .....	238
7.5	Targeting readerships .....	243
Chapter Eight	Different representations for different readerships: Christianity reflected .....	249
8.1	Anti-Spanish tendencies: the Benzoni volumes .....	250
8.2	Christianity compared .....	253
8.3	Custom-made differences .....	258
8.4	The case of Jean de Léry's Histoire .....	260

8.5	Different accounts for different readerships .....	265
8.6	Christians versus non-Christians .....	271
Chapter Nine The impact of censorship: the Index Librorum
	Expurgatorum and other indices .....	281
9.1	Catholic censorship in early modern Europe .....	281
9.2	The Iberian indices: prohibitions and expurgations ....	284
9.3	The collection censored .....	287
9.4	The offensive sections .....	290
9.5	Spanish versus Portuguese corrections .....	297
9.6	The impact of censorship: the case of De Léry .....	300
9.7	Enforcing the expurgations in Spain and Portugal .....	304
Chapter Ten Selling, purchasing, and borrowing: towards an understanding of readership .....	309
10.1	From the presses to the bookstores: pricing the volumes .....	309
10.2	From bookstore to customer: the Officina Plantiniana .....	314
10.3	The De Bry collection in perspective .....	319
10.4	In private libraries across Europe I: men of letters ....	321
10.5	To possess or not to possess the voyages .....	324
10.6	In private libraries across Europe II: the nobility .....	328
10.7	An early modern coffee-table book? .....	331
10.8	In the collections of public libraries .....	336
Chapter Eleven The impact of the De Bry collection:
	Travel literature and travel compendia in the seventeenth century .....	343
11.1	The collection abridged .....	343
11.2	The De Brys and Hulsius: from folio to quarto .....	346
11.3	Representations in reverse: the De Bry modifications in the Dutch Republic .....	352
11.4	The scope of the De Bry engravings in early modern Europe .....	359
11.5	Collections of voyages in the seventeenth century .....	367
11.6	Epilogue: an eighteenth-century revival .....	373

Conclusion .....	377
Appendices
1. Publications of the De Bry firm .....	389
2. The travel accounts used for the De Bry collection .....	493
3. The origins of the engravings in the De Bry collection .....	509
Bibliography .....	523
Index .....	551