

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 Postcolonial theories of autobiography and autobiography in postcolonial theory	1
Postcolonial theories of autobiography	1
Autobiography in postcolonial theory	5
Postcolonial theory as situated knowledge	11
Cases against autobiographical theory: culturalism and identity politics	13
Autobiographical postcolonialism	19
2 De-defining autobiography	26
Exile and the writing-thing	26
Roots and routes: the biography of a theory	32
The consistency of identity: Freud	37
Beyond the discursive threshold: Said the autobiographer	45
3 Inventing the postcolonial author	58
Postcolonialism and dialectical thought	58
Constructing authorship: Barthes and Foucault	61
Western subjectivity from Descartes	67
Said on ideas of textuality	74
Postcolonial personalism	87
4 Writing spirits autobiography	95
Preface	95
Philosophy and history	97
Language and situation	107
Chance and autobiography	113

5 Full disclosure and the native informant in postcolonial theory	122
Questioning narration	122
Cults of personality	123
Opening arguments	124
Identity politics	126
Subaltern testimony	129
Deconstruction as impossible autobiography	136
Spivak's singularity	146
Partial disclosure	148
6 Singularity and postcolonial exemplarity	155
The Universal and the same	155
Autobiographical universals	165
Conclusion	170
7 Bibliography	174
Index	190