

SCIENCE FICTION AND EMPIRE

PATRICIA KERSLAKE

LIVERPOOL UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Introduction	1
1. The Self and Representations of the Other in Science Fiction	8
2. Resistance Is Futile: Silencing and Cultural Appropriation	25
3. The Word for World Is Forest: Metaphor and Empire in Science Fiction	43
4. Things Fall Apart: Relativity, Distance and the Periphery	63
5. Moments of Empire: Perceptions of Lasswitz and Wells	83
6. Exoticising the Future: American Greats	105
7. The Shape of Things to Come: Homo futuris and the Imperial Project	127
8. A Postcolonial Imagination: Kim Stanley Robinson's Mars	146
9. Beyond Empire: Meta-empire and Postcoloniality	168
Conclusion	188
Notes	193
Bibliography	206
Index	214