

CONTENTS

List of Figures	x
List of Tables	xiv
List of Plates	xv

1. Introduction	1
1.1 Why this book, and why now?	2
1.2 Building Co-operation —Some caveats	5
1.3 Towards a co-operative business history	8
1.4 The co-operative business model and The Co-operative Group	13
1.5 Organization	17

PART I. RISE AND REIGN

2. The Roots and Rise of British Co-operation, c.1780–1863	23
2.1 Co-operative initiatives before the 1840s	24
2.2 The Rochdale Pioneers and the Rochdale model	34
2.3 The spread of co-operation in England and experiments in wholesaling, 1844–63	42
2.4 More concrete moves towards a wholesale society	47
3. The Rise of the CWS, 1863 to 1890: The Birth and Leadership of a Corporate Giant?	53
3.1 The context of co-operative development: British economic and social development, 1860–90, and the ‘retail revolution’	55
3.2 The co-operative movement and the ‘dominance of localism’	59
3.3 Building the CWS: The competitive ‘hothouse’ and the rise of a commercial giant	66
3.4 The CWS by 1890: A successful leader of the co-operative movement?	95
4. The Age of Expansion, 1890–1914	99
4.1 The co-operative movement and retailing, 1890–1914	100
4.2 Expanding production at home	114

4.3	CWS growth overseas	126
4.4	Serving co-operative societies	133
4.5	The structural challenges of growth	137
4.6	Managing a growing enterprise	142
4.7	Conclusions	147
5.	War and Peace, 1914–38	150
5.1	Co-operatives and the First World War	152
5.2	Peacetime conflicts, left and right	165
5.3	The General Co-operative Survey Committee	170
5.4	Troubled times	178
5.5	The CWS and inter-war politics	186
5.6	Doing business in troubled times	189
5.7	Reorganizing the CWS, 1929 and 1937	197
5.8	Conclusions	201

PART II. RETREAT AND RENAISSANCE

6.	Co-operation in Retreat: War and Decline, 1939–73	205
6.1	Historians and co-operative retreat	205
6.2	War—Again	210
6.3	Post-war challenges and inertia, 1945–55	220
6.4	The Co-operative Independent Commission, 1955–8	225
6.5	The 1960s and early 1970s: Deepening difficulties and the CWS response	237
6.6	Conclusions	250
7.	Adapting the Business Model, 1973–90	252
7.1	Macro-economic trends and consumer behaviour	253
7.2	Merging with SCWS	258
7.3	Expanding the Bank	266
7.4	Rationalization and investment	275
7.5	Conclusions	295
8.	The Watershed Decade	298
8.1	Early 1990s rationalization and corporate governance reform	299
8.2	The ‘family’, The Co-operative Bank, and ethical trading	316
8.3	Regan’s takeover bid	325
8.4	Impact	335
9.	‘Falling towards the Centre’: A Twenty-First-Century ‘Renaissance’	339
9.1	Melmoth, the CRS, and the ‘family’ concept	341
9.2	Beaumont, mergers, and market share	357

9.3 Marks and the 'renaissance'	375
9.4 Conclusions	386
10. Conclusions	388
10.1 Evolution of the business model	389
Appendix	398
Bibliography	402
Index	413