

Contents

Preface	vi
1 Introduction	1
2 Private Lives and Public Stories (La Princesse de Clèves)	24
3 Personal Ordering and Providential Order (Robinson Crusoe)	50
4 Negotiating Reality (Moll Flanders and Roxana)	74
5 Individualism and Authority	93
6 The Seduction of the Self (La Vie de Marianne and Le paysan parvenu)	105
7 From Private Narration to Public Narrative (Pamela)	133
8 Textualizing the Self (Clarissa)	158
9 The Necessary Other: the Dialogical Structure of the Self	188
10 Self-ish Narration and the Authorial Self (Joseph Andrews)	197
11 The Emergence of Literary Authority (Tom Jones)	218
12 Exemplification and the Authoring of Utopia (Julie, ou la nouvelle Héloïse)	240
13 Ironizing History (Tristram Shandy)	270
14 The Great Scroll of History (Jacques le fataliste)	295
15 Self-Emplotment and the Implication of the Reader (Les Liaisons dangereuses)	319
Bibliography	351
Index	358