

Contents

Preface	v
I The First "Australian" Plays	1
II Nineteenth-century Australian Melodrama (1)	20
III Nineteenth-century Australian Melodrama (2)	41
IV Other Plays of the Nineteenth-century "Light" Theatre	55
V Nineteenth-century "Literary" Drama	84
VI Rallying Calls for an Indigenous Australian Drama	99
VII Some "Authors' Theatres" and Their Contribution	113
VIII The Legend of Louis Esson	131
IX Sydney Tomholt, Vance Palmer, and Others	141
X Playwrights of the 1930s-1950s: Mask and Microphone (1)	154
XI Playwrights of the 1930s-1950s: Mask and Microphone (2)	184
XII Douglas Stewart and the Verse Drama of the Forties	211
XIII The Campaign for Theatre Subsidization	240
XIV The Trust, The Doll , and the Break-through	254
XV The New Era of Professionalism: On to The Shifting Heart	269
XVI Realism and Naturalism in the Late Fifties	287
XVII Enter Television Drama, and The One Day of the Year	303
XVIII The Plays of Patrick White	333
XIX Plays of the Articulate Classes: And Some Others	353
XX More about Radio and Television: and Theatre for the Young	379
XXI Words on Censorship, Australian Character, Prospects	392
Appendix I: Rusty Bugles: The Story of Its Banning	404
Appendix II: The Intimate Life of The Doll	410
Appendix III: The Playwrights Advisory Board: Some History	421
Index	426