

CONTENTS

Preface	xi
Introduction	1
1. Reinhold Niebuhr and the Tragic Vision	4
I. The Truth in Tragedy	4
II. Niebuhr on Myth and Tragedy	7
III. Niebuhr as a Negative Natural Theologian	10
IV. The Dialectic of Sin and Faith	12
V. The Limits of Civic Theology	15
VI. Niebuhr as Ironist	18
2. Comic Vision and the Christian Faith	23
I. Comedy as Sheer Vitalistic Energy	23
II. Comedy as Covert Nihilism	28
III. The Comedy of Redemption	31
3. Karl Barth as a Theologian of the Divine Comedy	34
I. The Gospel as a Singular Message of Joy	35
II. The Meaning of Evil as Revealed by Radical Grace	38
III. Creation's "Shadow-Side" and the "Impossible Possibility"	43
IV. The Christian Life as Eschatological Rejoicing	48
4. Barth's Evangelical Theology of Culture	57
I. The Gospel That Cannot Be Synthesized with Culture	57
II. Scripture as God's Narrative of Redemption	61
III. Parables of the Kingdom beyond the Bounds of the Church	67

IV. Mozart as a Musician of Life's Gracious Imbalance	72
V. Barth as a Humanist Christian	75
5. Flannery O'Connor as a Satirist of the Negative Way	80
I. The High Cost of Dying	82
II. A Roman Catholic in the Protestant South	87
III. A Negative Natural Theology	92
IV. The Necessity of Satiric Wrath	96
V. Dualism Defeated and Comedy Triumphant: The Violent Bear It Away	100
6. Flannery O'Connor as a Comedian of Positive Grace	107
I. The Complex Irony of Racial Manners	109
II. The Redemptive Grace of Black Suffering: "The Artificial Nigger"	114
III. Why Smart People Can't See Straight: "The Enduring Chill"	118
IV. The Hope of Being Least and Last of All God's Children: "Revelation"	126
7. Walker Percy as a Catholic Existentialist	133
I. Will Percy as Model and Nemesis	134
II. The Lure and Peril of Catonism	138
III. Scientific Humanism and Its Existentialist Critique	144
IV. Human Speech and the Human Longing for God	148
8. Percy as the Satirist Satirized: The Moviegoer	155
I. Binx Bolling as a Man in Conscious Despair	158
II. The Hierarchy of Unconscious Despair	163
III. The Emptiness of a Purely Self-Conscious Life	167
IV. The Human Summons to Transcendent Grace	169
V. The Life of Faith as Comic Hope	173
9. John Updike as an Ironist of the Spiritual Life	178
I. The Dialectic of Human Sexuality	179
II. Marriage as a Blessedly Difficult Estate: Couples	183
III. God as the Absent Lord of the Cosmos	190
IV. Faith as Transcendent Egotheism: "Midpoint"	197
10. The Strange Moral Progress of Harry ("Rabbit") Angstrom	207
I. Sinning That Grace May Abound: Rabbit, Run	210

II. "Time Is Our Element": Rabbit Redux	218
III. From Furious Running to Gracious Plodding: Rabbit Is Rich	223
11. Peter De Vries as a Humorist of Backslidden Unbelief	230
I. The Heavy Yoke of Satire and the Light Burden of Humor	232
II. How to Commit Suicide without Killing Oneself: Nihilistic Humor in The Cat's Pajamas and Witches Milk	237
III. Bathed in Swank, Gliding on Suavity: The Glories of Aestheticism in Comfort Me with Apples	242
IV. Imaginative Conformity vs. Predictable Revolt: The Tents of Wickedness	249
12. The Comedy of Unconditional Election and Irresistible Grace	252
I. Shipwrecked in the Haven of Marriage: Through the Fields of Clover	253
II. Within the Shadow of Doubt: The Blood of the Lamb	259
III. Calvinistic Anti-Calvinism: The Mackerel Plaza	270
Conclusion: How Comic Vision Serves the Church and the World	280
Notes	286
Index	307