

CONTENTS

|                                                     |           |
|-----------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Acknowledgments                              | page viii |
| Introduction                                        | i         |
| AMERICAN VERSE TRADITIONS, 1800–1855                |           |
| Barbara Packer                               |           |
| Preface: reverence and ambition                     | ii        |
| 1. Neoclassicism: comic and satiric verse           | 17        |
| 2. Early narrative and lyric                        | 41        |
| 3. Transcendentalism                                | 87        |
| 4. John Greenleaf Whittier                          | 137       |
| POETRY AND PUBLIC DISCOURSE, 1820–1910              |           |
| Shira Wolosky                                |           |
| Preface: the claims of rhetoric                     | 147       |
| 1. Modest claims                                    | 155       |
| 2. Claiming the Bible                               | 200       |
| 3. Poetic languages                                 | 248       |
| 4. Plural identities                                | 324       |
| 5. Walt Whitman: the office of the poet             | 362       |
| 6. Emily Dickinson: the violence of the imagination | 427       |
| Chronology, 1800–1910 Neal Dolan             | 481       |
| Bibliography                                 | 534       |
| Index                                        | 540       |