

Contents

Acknowledgments	vi
Introduction: What Difference Does Regional Writing Make?	3
1 "I Feared to Find Myself a Foreigner": Sarah Orne Jewett's The Country of the Pointed Firs	17
2 The Region of the Repressed and the Return of the Region: Hamlin Garland and Harold Frederic	38
3 The History of a Historyless People: Gertrude Atherton's The Californians	73
4 "The Shadow of the Ethiopian": George Washington Cable's The Grandissimes	98
5 Disorienting Regionalism: Jacob Riis, the City, and the Chinese Question	124
6 Representation and Tammany Hall: Locating the Body Politic	154
Notes	183
Works Cited	198
Index	206