

Contents

Preface	vii
Part One MOORE'S 'PROOF OF AN EXTERNAL WORLD'
1 Moore's Proof	3
2 Is a Material Thing a Kind of Thing?	6
3 The Concept of Externality	16
4 The relation between Moore's Premise and his Conclusion	32
5 Can Moore's Opponent be Proved Wrong?	40
6 What Moore's Proof achieves	54
7 What Moore's Opponent Denies	62
8 Scepticism and Moore's Premise	68
9 'Doubting has an end' (Wittgenstein)	82
10 Moore's Premise: Known Directly	87
11 Moore's Premise: True Come what further May	96
12 Conclusion: Philosophical Scepticism	106
Part Two SOLIPSISM AND OUR KNOWLEDGE OF OTHER MINDS
1 Introduction	115
2 Reality of the Soul: Human Life and Behaviour	118
3 Solipsism	127
4 'A Language which only I can Understand'	142
5 Myself and Other People	149
6 Privacy and the First Person Pronoun	159
7 Asymmetrical Logic of Mind	176

8 Our Knowledge of Other Minds: Mental Life and Human Behaviour	185
9 Conclusion: Cartesianism and Behaviourism	212
Bibliography	220
Index	223