

Contents

Introductory Note	PAGE vii
Preface	xiii
CHAPTER
I INTRODUCTORY DISTINCTIONS	3
Problems of Normative Ethics—5
Problems of Descriptive Ethics—17
II MORAL PHENOMENA AS DEPENDENT VARIABLES	27
A Plea for a Sociology of Morality—27
The Role of the Physical Environment—29
Demographic Factors—32
The Urban and the Rural Way of Life—41
The Role of Industrialization—44
Economic Determinants—46
The Division of Labor and Morality—51
Professional Differentiation as a Factor in the Differentiation of Morality—53
Political Factors: The Type of Government—57
The Role of Bureaucracy—60
The Influence of Social Stratification—61
Role and Morality—64
Relations within the Family and Their Influence—66
The Way Moral Approval or Disapproval Depends on the Relation between Agent and Partner—71
Personality Factors in Morality—73
The Role of Individuals in the Development of Moral Opinions—73
The Role of the Past—74
Knowledge and Morality—74

	Art and Morality—78
	Morality and Religion—80
	Morality and Law—83
	Moral Phenomena as Independent Variables—84
	Methodological Remarks—89
III	THEORIES CONCERNING MORALITY AS A WHOLE	98
	The Origin of Morality—98
	Opinions Concerning the Evolution of Moral Ideas—100
	Functionalism Applied to Moral Norms—103
	Cultural Relativism in Morality—108
	The Problem of Universal Moral Standards—109
	I. The Topicality of the Problem—109
	II. Attempts at an A Priori Solution—112
	III. Attempts at an Empirical Solution of the Problem—116
	IV. Universality of Moral Standards as Compared with Universality of Other Standards and of Descriptions—118
IV	THE NOBILITY ETHOS AND THE BOURGEOIS ETHOS	124
	The Homeric Warrior—124
	The Nobility in the Middle Ages—131
	The Courtier—140
	The Gentleman—147
	The Bourgeois Morality—154
	Benjamin Franklin—160
	Daniel Defoe—163
	C. F. Volney—166
	Fusion of the Bourgeois Ethos and the Nobility Ethos—168
	The Concept of Morality—173
	Notes	183