

Romanticism and Methodism

The problem of religious enthusiasm

Helen Boyles

Contents

Preface	vi
Introduction	1
1 John Wesley's mission: steering a course between sound and spurious enthusiasm	11
2 Restraining strategies: seeking a balance between emotion and reason in Wesleyan discourse	26
3 Divided feelings on Methodist enthusiasm: Southey and Coleridge's debate	54
4 Wordsworth's early exposure to Methodist enthusiasm	79
5 Common missions in Wordsworth's Preface to The Lyrical Ballads and John Wesley's Preface to the Methodist Hymns	91
6 Literary Dissent: the 'common voice' in Wordsworth's Lyrical Ballads	105
7 Evangelical style and sentiment in The Excursion and Peter Bell	126
8 William Hazlitt's 'gusto' and enthusiasm	156
Conclusion	182
The broader picture	188
Bibliography	193
Index	203